ASHBi will investigate the core concepts of human biology with a focus on genome regulation and disease modeling, creating a foundation of knowledge for developing innovative and unique human-centric therapies. The key goals are: 1) to achieve outstanding research in key individual themes in human biology in the area of reproduction, development, growth and aging as well as heredity and evolution; 2) to elucidate the principles for the emergence of species differences among humans, non-human primates, and rodents for proper extrapolation of the findings in model organisms to humans; 3) to generate primate models for key gene functions and intractable diseases; 4) to reconstitute key human cell lineages and tissues in vitro and validate their properties based on integrative information; and 5) to contribute to formalize an ethics for the use of human/non-human primate materials and create a philosophy to direct the values of the Institute's research outcomes.

Comparative Epigenomics (Bourque's Group) aims to understand human epigenome that underlies complex biological phenomena, such as cell differentiation, development, evolution and human diseases. To achieve this goal, we use cutting edge genomic technologies, such as RNA-seq, ChIP-seq, Cut&Tag, ATAC-seq and lentiMPRA, in combination with iPS cell and single-cell technologies. The candidate is expected to perform high-level research together with Dr. Fumitaka Inoue, co-PI of Bourque Group (for more detail see also; <https://ashbi.kyoto-u.ac.jp/members/fumitaka-inoue/>), and act as the leading researcher in human biology and the related fields.
