Are you wondering what step to take next in your career? Do you love Science and enjoy reading and learning about new scientific discoveries? If so, a career as an Editor at a scientific journal may be perfect for you! In this seminar, I will introduce the critical role of Editors in Science and describe how one can become a Scientific Editor, including the job interview process and where an editorial career can lead you. If you are thinking about alternative careers outside of academia, this seminar may be just the one for you!
